The State of Florida assembly hereby convenes to declare the existence of the State assembly to form and declare the existence of the National Government of the State of Florida and within the metes and bounds herein described:

IT IS DECLARED, that the State of Florida hereby exists within the following metes and bounds to wit:

Spanish West Florida was acquired through Governor Bernardo de Galvez' conquest over the British by capture of Baton Rouge and Natchez, 1779 and Mobile Alabama 1780 and Pensacola, 1781. The treaty of peace between Spain and England gave both East Florida and West Florida to new meets and bounds:

Beginning at the mouth of the confluence with the Mississippi River, eastward to the Atlantic Ocean, by running north along the line of treaties 31st degree parallel, which was awarded to the new The United States of America;

In and before West Florida status was under the 1789 constitution, it was de jure Colonies operating under an oppressive Governor placed by Spain. The take-over of a group of Spaniards on post reportedly lead to 1789 United States private charter claiming from the de jure colonies of West Florida;

The British left after the East Florida and West Florida divide. The Spanish ceded with pay whereby the 1789 United States private charter lead to its being claimed.

These things effectively removed all types of Metes and Bounds to the West Florida water-line of the State of Florida and removed all types of Metes and Bounds to the East Florida water-line.

The old metes and bounds with the Perdido River are now moved to the confluence with the Mississippi River, whereby all types of metes and bounds have been moved to the East Florida water-line.

The East Florida and West Florida became Florida, and the waterline to the sea is the metes and bounds, to include the waterline along the southern shore incorporating the southern Islands reaching the Dry Tortuga.

This includes reaching Fort Jefferson, a six-sided fort, before the civil war, which was built by slaves finishing in 1847 and occupied during the war by Union troops. This includes the Straits of Florida and The Florida reefs and the Marguesas Keys, and westerly then due south 3 leagues from Loggerhead Key, which is confluent to the Gulf Stream.

AS IT IS DECLARED, that the State of Florida shall exist within the metes and bounds and seaward boundaries of The United States of America as surveyed and established within the Articles of Confederation, as amended the fifth of August two thousand and fifteen, and
